WELCOME TO EXCELL

Excell Security wishes you every success during your employment, whether you recently joined or are an existing employee. It is hoped that your experience of working with us will be positive and rewarding.

ABOUT EXCELL

The Excell Security brand was established in 2006 by Benny Kaushal, the current Managing Director. Hard work led to the development of EPG's quality responsiveness with which we have grown the business from a small team of 4 guards to a substantial operation. We take pride in the fact that we still employ those 4 people today!

We identified a gap in the security industry involving service delivery, honesty and customer care. This led to us to establish other enterprises. All of these businesses work together under a collaborative structure. EPG is committed to delivering 'freedom from apprehension' through quality responsiveness. We are working to operate our own 24/7 control room.

This is an exciting time. We are currently undergoing some significant change as we grow and redirect our organisational energy through a structure in keeping with our growth. We operate in a family-style business despite our increasing size and sophistication.

Our Vision

'Freedom from Apprehension'

We want our clients to be free to go about their business while we look after their interests by doing our work.

Mission

'Quality Responsiveness'

We intend to respond quickly, in words and action to meet the needs of our customers, internal and external, with high levels of value and excellence.

We intend to deliver high quality products with precision and generosity to quickly resolve our customer's needs.

PURPOSE OF THE EMPLOYEE HANDBOOK

The Employee Handbook sets out Excell's rules and regulations, the policies and procedures relating to your employment. It also contains information on your benefits and protections.

If you require any clarification or additional information, please speak to your manager. All employees are required to comply with the Employee Handbook. Therefore, we ask that you read the content carefully as you may be subject to appropriate disciplinary action (up to and including termination) in the event that you breach the Employee Handbook.

Amendments to this Employee Handbook will be issued from time to time. This Employee Handbook does not form part of your contract of employment, unless expressly stated otherwise. However, in any event, the Employee Handbook may be considered when interpreting your rights and obligations under your terms of employment.

Nothing in this handbook is intended to, or shall be used to, avoid the exercise of due professional skill & wit, professional training and legal compliance: The necessary attributes and standards required for a licence shall be assumed as being operative during the conduct of duties.

The conduct of specific roles is contained in the applicable procedures which may be issued from time to time.

PRINCIPLE OF EQUALITY

Excell is committed to providing equal opportunities out of our sense of natural justice and in accordance with relevant legislative provisions. We recognise merit and loyalty. We will not tolerate any unlawful discriminatory act or unlawful behaviour in the course of your employment or in your dealings with our clients, suppliers, contractors, members of the public or fellow colleagues. Acts of unlawful discrimination, harassment or victimisation will result in disciplinary action.

JOINING THE ORGANISATION

At the start of your employment, you are required to read, understand and acknowledge: your contract, confidentiality agreement, the employee handbook and the health and safety handbook. You may also be required to undertake site training and ongoing training as required.

The length of your probationary period is set out in your contract of employment. Casual employees are not subject to a probationary period. During this period, your work performance and general suitability will be assessed and, if it is satisfactory, your employment will continue. However, if your work performance is assessed as generally unsuitable, the Employer may either take remedial action (which may include the extension of your probationary period) or terminate your employment at any time prior to confirmation of your employment. We reserve the right not to apply full capability and disciplinary procedures during your probationary period.

At the commencement of your employment, you will receive any training necessary for your specific job. As your employment progresses, your role may be extended to encompass new activities within the Employer's business. You are expected to participate in any training deemed necessary for you to perform your role at the required standards.

The Employer has a policy of encouraging its employees to undertake training in order to advance their career to the benefit of both the Employer and the individual. The Employer may agree to contribute to the cost of the training. In this event, you may be asked to enter into a specific agreement for training (the Training Agreement). However, where the Employer has contributed to your training and your employment is terminated, for whatever reason, the Employer will seek reimbursement of the costs in line with the Training Agreement. Further details are available separately.

The Employer's policy is to monitor your work performance on a continual basis so that we can maximise your strengths, and help you with any development areas. We have an employee appraisal scheme in place for the purpose of monitoring employee performance levels with a view to maximising the effectiveness of individuals.

Your shift availabilities, and any changes to them, are to be provided to the Employer in according the prevailing protocol. Changes to casual staff availability may result in less hours being offered. Changes to permanent availability may only occur by agreement with the Employer.

Whenever necessary, you will transfer to alternative duties within the Employer's business. During holiday periods, for example, it may be necessary for you to take over duties normally performed by colleagues. This flexibility is essential for operational efficiency as the type and volume of work is always subject to change.

It is a condition of your employment that you are prepared, whenever applicable, to travel to any other of our sites or client sites within a reasonable travelling distance. This mobility is essential to the smooth running of the business.

During your employment, you are required to immediately report to the Employer any convictions or offences with which may be potentially charged or have been charged.

EXPECTATION

Professional security officers are expected to perform their duties in full from the start of a shift through to the completion of the shift. Staff should be present and effective from the start of their shift through to its completion.

Scheduled tasks are expected to be completed. Where absences are likely or known, reasonable notice is to be given especially for leave and as timely as possible for sick leave.

It is expected that security officers have effective communication skills and are able to clearly communicate in English. They are also expected to be able to take reasonable instructions from the management team.

EPG officers are to use their professional skill and wit at all times as well as their intelligence to reason their way through situations. Nothing is these or any other procedures is to be used to avoid professional responsibilities.

If at any time during your working hours, you believe that you are unfit to continue working or need to leave the workplace for any reason, you must approach your manager to discuss the reason for your departure and obtain approval prior to leaving the workplace. Your manager will then advise you of whether any evidence of the reasons for your absence, such as a medical certificate or statutory declaration, is required. All absences due to illness must be notified in accordance with the sickness reporting procedures set out in this Employee Handbook. Lateness or unauthorised absence may result in disciplinary action and/or loss of pay.

Working from Home or Other Off-site Location.

General

A home worker is someone who is employed by the Employer and allowed to work at or from their home on an ongoing or regular basis. In this case, your working environment and working practices are subject to the same working standards that are applied to working at the Employer's premises regarding performance effectiveness, confidentiality, access to Employer documents and Health and Safety.

Management

Managers are to agree with home workers on the measures that will ensure regularity of effective supervision and communication. All home working staff may be required attend meetings and other events in person as specified from time to time by the Employer. In the event of illness, home workers must contact their manager as soon as possible on the first day of sickness and comply with all aspects of the Employer's absence reporting procedures.

Management of the home worker, other than where detailed in the provisions of this policy, will not differ from the management of the Employer's other staff. Managers will involve their teams in devising the most appropriate methods of maintaining team cohesion and collaboration among the home and office-based staff, paying particular attention to the working relationship between the home worker and their administrative support.

Health and Safety

The Employer will seek to ensure, so far as is reasonably practicable, the health, safety and welfare at work of all employees, including home workers. A risk assessment of the proposed area of work and the equipment in your home will be carried out to evaluate the risk to your health and safety, as well as the health and safety of your family and members of the public. Thereafter, it is essential that this is routinely checked as often as if you were based at the Employer's premises.

You are responsible for the health and safety of any visitors, children or family members who may come into contact with any property or equipment supplied by the Employer for home-working. If there are any faults in the Employer equipment, the equipment should not be used at any time until it has been inspected and any necessary repairs have been carried out by the appropriate specialists. You are responsible for ensuring that any damage to equipment is reported promptly to the Employer.

Furthermore, while in that particular work space, you are to treat it as a work place during approved work times for health and safety purposes.

Equipment

The Employer will identify what equipment you need to work from home. This could include equipment such items as a laptop, printer, mobile telephone and internet connection. If equipment is supplied by the Employer, the Employer will pay for the installation and maintenance necessary for you to work at home, and pay all expenses incurred in relation to its work-related use. This may include the cost of consumables such as paper, cartridges, and costs of telephone and internet usage subject to receipts and/or an itemised invoice/bill from the supplier.

On termination of your employment or upon the Employer's request, you must return all Employer property, equipment and information which is in your possession or for which you have responsibility. The Employer reserves the right to take action to recover Employer property and equipment that has not been returned.

Access

The Employer may request, to visit and gain access to that area of your home you use for your workplace in order to:

- review, inspect or remove any of our property, documents, records, or other information relating to the Employer and your work and/or
- conduct an audit of work conditions including health and safety provisions

Your manager must be informed immediately of any actual or potential changes to:

- your address
- occupancy of the property by yourself and/or others
- telephone communications with the property
- any other changes relevant to the use of your home as your work base.

YOUR CAPABILITY

Changes

We recognise that during your employment with us you may find yourself less capable of conducting your duties. This might commonly be because either the job changes over a period of time and you have not kept pace with the changes, or you change (perhaps because of health reasons) and you can no longer cope with the work. We retain discretion in respect of the capability procedures to take account of your length of service and to vary the procedures accordingly.

General Capability Issues

If we have general concerns about your ability to perform your job or if the nature of your job changes, we will try to ensure that you understand the level of performance expected of you and that you receive adequate training and supervision. Concerns regarding your capability will normally first be discussed in an informal manner and you will be given time to improve.

If you arrive for work and, in the Employer's opinion, you are not fit to work, the Employer reserves the right to exercise its duty of care, particularly where the Employer believes that you may not be able to undertake your duties in a safe manner or may pose a safety risk to yourself and others. We may dismiss you for the remainder of the day. Payment is at management discretion and will depend on the circumstances. If applicable, you may be required to provide a certificate from your treating doctor stating your fitness for duties before being permitted to return to work.

If your standard of performance is still not adequate, you may be warned in writing that a failure to improve and to maintain the performance required could lead to your termination. We will also consider the possibility of a transfer to more suitable work if possible. If there is still no improvement after a reasonable time and we cannot transfer you to more suitable work, or if your level of performance has a serious or substantial effect on the Employer to its detriment, you will be dismissed with the appropriate notice.

Personal Circumstance and Health Issues

Personal circumstances may arise which do not prevent you from attending work but which prevent you from carrying out your normal duties (eg a health matter).

If such a situation arises, we will normally seek to have expert advice which, under usual circumstances, can be most easily obtained by asking your own expert (eg a doctor) for a report. Your permission is needed before we can obtain such a report and we will expect you to co-operate in this matter.

When we have obtained as much information as needed regarding your matter and after consultation with you, a decision will be made about your future employment with the Employer in your current role or, where circumstances permit, in a more suitable role.

LEAVE

Annual Leave and Public Holidays

You are entitled to accrue annual leave in accordance with the NES, unless otherwise stated in your contract of employment. For the avoidance of doubt, casual employees are not entitled to annual leave. Your annual leave pay will be at your normal basic pay unless shown otherwise in your contract of employment. It is the Employer's policy to encourage you to take all of your holiday entitlement in the current year.

You must submit your leave request through the Employer's leave approval system and have it approved by management before you make any firm holiday arrangements.

You must give at least four weeks' notice of your intention to take annual leave of a week or more and one week's notice is required for odd single days.

Annual leave dates will normally be allocated on a "first come, first served" basis whilst ensuring that operational efficiency and appropriate staffing levels are maintained throughout the year.

Due to the nature of the business, the Employer can only accommodate a limited number of employees taking annual leave at the same time.

Your entitlement to public holidays is in accordance with the NES, unless otherwise stated in your individual contract of employment. However, due to the nature of the Employer's work, you may be reasonably required to work a public holiday. You will be given advance notice if work on a public holiday is required.

Long Service Leave

You may be entitled to long service leave in accordance with the relevant laws of the state in which you are employed. Long service leave should be taken as soon as reasonably practicable after you become entitled to it.

Time Off

Circumstances may arise where you need time off for medical/dental appointments, or for other reasons. Where possible, such appointments should be made outside normal working hours. If this is not possible, time off required for these purposes may be granted at the discretion of management and will normally be without pay.

Personal Leave

You are entitled to be paid for personal leave, unless otherwise stated in your contract of employment. For the avoidance of doubt, casual employees are not entitled to paid personal leave. Paid personal leave accrues over the course of your employment. Employees (other than casuals) will accrue up to ten days of paid personal/carer's leave for each year of continuous service in accordance with the provisions of the Fair Work Act 2009. Personal leave accrues, and will be credited to you, progressively throughout the year. Unused leave will not be paid out on termination.

You are entitled to take personal leave:

- because you are not fit for work due to a personal illness or personal injury affecting you or
- to provide care or support to a member of your immediate family, or a member of your household who requires your care and support because of:
 - a personal illness or injury affecting the member or
 - a sudden or unexpected emergency affecting the member.

If your entitlement to personal leave is exhausted, you may take two days' unpaid carer's leave for each occasion when a member of your immediate family or a member of your household requires your care and support because of:

- a personal illness or personal injury affecting the member or
- a sudden or unexpected emergency affecting the member.

An immediate family member is yours, or your spouse/de facto partner's:

- spouse or de facto partner
- child or grandchild
- parent or grandparent
- sibling or

A household member is any person who lives with you.

You must notify the Employer by telephone on the first day of incapacity or at the earliest possible opportunity and, in any case, by no later than as soon as possible before your usual start time. Emails are not an acceptable method of notification. Other than in exceptional circumstances notification should be made personally to your manager.

You should try to give an indication of your expected return date and notify the Employer as soon as possible if this date changes. The notification procedures should be followed on each day of absence, unless you are covered by a doctor's medical certificate. If your incapacity extends to more than seven days you are required to notify us of your continued incapacity once a week thereafter, unless otherwise agreed.

Evidence of the need for personal leave is required. A medical certificate from a registered health practitioner (or if not reasonably practical a statutory declaration) is required for all personal leave (unless otherwise agreed by the Employer in specific circumstances) where the leave is:

- on two or more consecutive days,
- on a single day prior to or after a public holiday, weekend or non-working day,

The Employer retains the discretion to require evidence for carer's leave. The Employer will notify you of this requirement as appropriate.

Returning to work, you should notify your manager as soon as you know on which day you will be returning to work, if this differs from a date of return previously notified. On return to work after any period of personal leave, you may be required to attend a return to work interview to discuss the state of your health and fitness for work. Information arising from such an interview will be treated with strictest confidence. You may be required to provide a certificate from your own doctor stating that you are fit to return to your duties. This will always be required where you have suffered a workplace injury/illness that required medical treatment. If you have been suffering from an infectious or contagious disease or illness such as rubella or hepatitis, you must not report for work without clearance from your own doctor.

Submission of a medical certificate may not always be regarded as sufficient justification for accepting your absence. Sickness is just one of a number of reasons for absence and although it is understandable that if you are unwell you may need time off. Continual or repeated absence through sickness may not be acceptable to the Employer. In deciding whether your absence is acceptable, the Employer will take into account the reasons for your absences and extent of them, including any absence caused by sickness/injury. We cannot operate with an excessive level of absence as all absence, for whatever reason, reduces the Employer's ability to operate successfully. The Employer will not tolerate any non-genuine absences, and any such instances will result in disciplinary action being taken. If considered necessary, we reserve the right to ask your permission to contact your doctor and/or for you to be independently medically examined.

Parental leave

If you or your partner become pregnant, or are notified of a match date for adoption purposes, you should notify management at an early stage so that your entitlements and obligations can be explained to you.

Employees who will have at least 12 months of continuous service as at the expected date of the child's birth, are entitled to 52 weeks of unpaid parental leave. Casuals with regular on-going work are also entitled to unpaid parental leave. You may request an additional 52 weeks of leave which may only be refused by the Employer on reasonable business grounds.

You may take up to 30 days of your entitlement to parental leave as unpaid flexible parental leave. Flexible parental leave can be taken in a single continuous period of one or more days or separate periods of one or more days each. Flexible parental leave can be used in the 24 month period from the date of birth or placement of the child, however cannot be taken before any other period of parental leave. Other forms of leave may be taken concurrently with parental leave, but when combined with the unpaid parental leave must not exceed the 52 week period.

Leave is available only to the primary caregiver of the child, except at the birth of the child where the other parent is entitled to eight weeks of concurrent unpaid leave. Any parental leave taken by the other parent will be deducted from the total entitlement of 52 weeks unpaid leave.

You must give the Employer at least ten weeks prior notice of your intention to take unpaid parental leave. This can be done in accordance with the Employer's leave application procedures. When advising of your intention to take unpaid parental leave you must provide the following:

- a medical certificate indicating the expected date of birth of the child, or, where the leave is adoption related, the expected date of placement
- an expected return date and
- details of any parental leave your partner intends to take.

You may be entitled to Australia government fully funded parental leave. Employees who are expecting a child or adopting a child are eligible for up to 18 weeks of paid Parental Leave at the rate of the National Minimum Wage if they meet the Eligibility criteria. For eligibility criteria refer to Service Australia. You may be entitled to two weeks of Dad and Partner Pay by the Government at the national minimum wage. Refer to Service Australia for details. Requests are to be made via the Parental Leave Request Form, and the employee and the Employer will need to reach an agreement as to your unpaid leave period.

Community Service Leave

Community service is generally unpaid. Your entitlement for payment for Jury Duty will depend on the relevant state and federal legislation.

The leave can be taken when you require some time to deal with the impact of this and it is impractical to do so outside of your work hours. For example, you may take this leave to:

When you wish to take this leave, you are required to provide the Employer with notice as soon as reasonably practicable and advise of the period (or expected period) of leave. The Employer may require you to provide evidence of that would satisfy a reasonable person that the leave will be, or was, taken for the purposes as outlined above. Depending on the circumstances such evidence may include a document issued by the police service, a court or a family violence support service, or a statutory declaration. The Employer will ensure, as far as reasonably practicable, that steps are taken to safeguard any information disclosed by yourself concerning family and domestic violence leave. This information will be kept confidential to the extent permitted by the law. This policy does not override any legal obligations to disclose information.

Shortage of Work

If there is a temporary shortage of work for any reason, we will try to maintain your continuity of employment. With your agreement, we may place you on reduced hours, or alternatively, temporary leave. If you agree to be placed on reduced hours, your pay will be reduced according to time actually worked. If you are placed on leave, this will be processed as leave without pay unless you elect to utilise any accrued leave entitlements. Dress

EPG officers are expected to be presentable to the satisfaction of both EPG and the client. Presentation must be to the best advantage of the officer and to the best image of EPG. Politeness, composure and attitude must reflect the ideals of effective security EPG's vision.

The full prescribed uniform for the given work is to be worn. The basic uniform requirement is (currently) the EPG polo/jacket with black pants, black socks and black shoes. Shoes should be safety designed and appropriate to the workplace. Runners may be acceptable in some cases only when authorised by management.

Where uniforms are provided, these must be worn at all times whilst at work. Clothing is to be clean and presentable at all times with polished/clean footwear. It is understood that service exigencies may affect uniform cleanliness which may deteriorate over a shift. Where it is reasonably anticipated that a shift will result in an unclean uniform, consider bringing a change of shirt etc with you. You are to use appropriate (eg prescription and modest) eyewear.

Uniform may be worn while travelling to or from work. It is not to be worn while attending to personal matters during such travel. Uniform is not to worn for any purpose other than work. Inappropriate behaviour in any issued uniform is not acceptable.

If you arrive for work inappropriately groomed or dressed, your manager may advise you to change. Any resulting lost time will be unpaid. If you are in any doubt whether any aspect of your appearance or attire is appropriate for your job role you should contact management.

Personal protective equipment (PPE) may be issued because of the nature of your job and if issued must be worn and used as directed. Failure to do so could be a contravention of your health and safety responsibilities. Care and proper use of PPE is your responsibility.

The Employer may take the action it determines appropriate to avoid the actual or potential conflict of interest. Such action may include transfers, reassignments, changing shifts, or, where appropriate, termination of employment.

Other Employment. You are expected to devote the whole of your time and attention during working hours to the business. If you propose taking up additional employment with another employer or to pursue separate business interests or another venture, you must discuss this with your manager in order to establish the likely impact of these activities on both yourself and the Employer. Where any conflict of interest or other threat to this Employer may exist, you will be asked to give appropriate details of the proposal and consideration will be given to:

- working hours
- competition, reputation and credibility
- management of the conflict of interest
- health, safety and welfare.

You will be notified in writing of the Employer's decision who may refuse consent. If you work without consent this could result in employment termination. If you already have other employment or are considering additional employment, you must notify the Employer so that we can discuss any implications arising, i.e. working time, health and safety issues or conflicts of interest. You may not under any circumstances, directly or indirectly, undertake any other duties whilst on Employer premises or on paid work. Unless approved by the Employer, you may not perform services similar to those performed for the Employer elsewhere for compensation.

Wastage

We maintain a policy of "minimum waste", which is essential to the cost-effective and efficient running of the business. - in the event of an at fault accident whilst driving one of EPG's vehicles you may be required to pay the cost of the insurance excess.

EPG reserves the right to request to deduct such costs from your pay.

SAFEGUARDS

We have the right to carry out searches of you and your property (including vehicles) whilst you, or your property, are on our premises or during the performance of your duties. Where practicable, searches will be carried out in the presence of a colleague of your choice who is available at the time of the search. You may be asked to remove the contents of your pockets, bags, vehicles, etc. Whilst you have the right to refuse to be searched, such refusal will constitute failure to follow a reasonable management instruction which may result in disciplinary action being taken against you. We reserve the right to call the police at any stage.

Surveillance may be conducted in the workplace. Surveillance may be conducted using:

- internet usage recording devices, such as data capture, web browsing and email history captured on servers, and keystroke recognition
- any form of visual recording devices including all types of cameras,
- any form of audio recording devices and

The purpose of the surveillance is to ensure the safety and security of people and property. EPG reserves the right to review and use the surveillance records in disciplinary proceedings.

Surveillance may be conducted at any time and may be continuous or intermittent at the Employer's discretion. The Employer may, at their discretion, disclose the surveillance records for any reason that is not barred by privacy legislation or the law. If the Employer becomes aware of any secret recording, each case will be dealt with on its own merits and appropriate action may be taken. This may include disciplinary action up to and including termination.

You may consult with the Employer regarding any surveillance concerns. All cameras will be visible and recording devices will not be placed in bathrooms or similar personal spaces.

WHISTLEBLOWER POLICY

EPG supports a 'speak up' policy. The Corporations Act 2001 (Cth) provides protections for certain types of persons that make a disclosure of reportable conduct. This policy ensures any disclosers can raise concerns regarding misconduct or any improper circumstances of EPG (including any related entities) free from victimisation, harassment or discriminatory treatment.

The protections in this policy apply to disclosers, which means anyone who is, or has been, any of the following with respect to EPG:

- employee, director, officer, associate, consultant
- contractor (including employees of a contractor)
- supplier (including employees of a supplier)
- a relative, dependant, spouse, or dependant of a spouse of any of the above.

The protections in this policy also applies to anyone who discloses information relating to EPG to a legal practitioner for the purpose of obtaining legal advice or legal representation in relation to whistleblowing protection laws. Reportable Conduct is conduct which involves:

- dishonest behaviour
- fraudulent activity
- unlawful, corrupt or unethical use of company property or practices
- improper or misleading accounting or financial reporting practices
- behaviour that is unlawful, oppressive, discriminatory or grossly negligent
- unsafe work practices
- a serious risk to the health and safety of any person or the environment
- behaviour which may cause financial loss to the Employer, damage its reputation or be otherwise detrimental to the Employer's interests.

Personal work-related grievances regarding matters such as an interpersonal conflict with the discloser and another employee or a business decision relating to an engagement, transfer, promotion, terms and conditions, suspension or termination of the discloser's employment typically fall outside this policy and should be raised in accordance with the relevant employee grievance policy that applies. An exception to this is where a personal work-related grievance is related to detrimental treatment taken against the discloser because the discloser has made (or is suspected of making) a disclosure under this policy, or because the discloser proposes to (or could) make a disclosure under this policy. The Employer relies on its employees and disclosers to maintain its culture of honest and ethical behaviour. To this end, it is expected that any discloser who becomes aware of Reportable Conduct will make a formal report.

Employees should initially report the reportable conduct to their relevant senior manager. If a discloser cannot, a report can be made to the manager C&C.

Reports may be made in person or by telephone, and the discloser must inform the eligible recipient that they wish to make a report under this policy. Upon receiving a report, the recipient will determine if the report relates to reportable conduct and, if so, the report will be investigated appropriately. The particular investigation process will be determined by the nature and substance of the report. Investigations will be conducted in an objective, reasonable and fair manner.

Disclosers may remain anonymous. Information likely to lead to identifying the discloser cannot be disclosed without the discloser's consent, provided that:

- the disclosure of the confidential information is reasonably necessary for the purposes of investigating the conduct disclosed, and
- all reasonable steps are taken to reduce the risk that the discloser will be identified.

Where appropriate, the recipient or investigator will provide feedback to the discloser regarding the investigation's progress and/or outcome. This will be subject to privacy and confidentiality considerations. Information about a discloser's identity and information that is likely to lead to identifying the discloser may be disclosed in the following circumstances:

- where the information is disclosed to the lawful authorities
- where the information is disclosed to a legal practitioner for the purpose of obtaining legal advice in relation to the operation of applicable whistleblowing protection laws
- where the discloser consents.

Information, files and records that form part of an investigation into reportable conduct will be retained securely. A discloser will not be subject to any civil, criminal or disciplinary action for making a report covered by this policy, or for participating in any subsequent investigation. EPG will not tolerate any retaliation against any discloser including, but not limited to:

- dismissal, harassment or intimidation
- injury of an employee in their employment, property or reputation
- alteration of an employee's position or duties to their disadvantage
- discrimination between an employee and other employees of the same employer
- damage to a person's business or financial position, or
- any other damage to a person.

Detrimental treatment of an employee will be deemed a serious breach of this policy and may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment. Retaliatory conduct may also attract civil or criminal liability. EPG will connect the discloser with internal and external support providers as necessary.

In addition to this, EPG has the right to protect its business interests and confidentiality. This includes the right to survey, audit and/or monitor the systems, including but not limited to:

- monitoring sites users visit on the internet
- monitoring time spent on the internet
- reviewing material downloaded or uploaded and
- reviewing emails sent and received.

Information reports will be available to EPG which can be used for matters such as system performance and availability, capacity planning, cost re-distribution and the identification of areas for personal development. EPG reserves the right to monitor all internet and email activity by you for the purposes of ensuring compliance with EPG policies and procedures and for ensuring compliance with the relevant regulatory requirements. Information acquired through such monitoring may be used as evidence in disciplinary proceedings.

Social Media

Whilst social media can be used to strengthen EPG's brand and overall image, work related issues or materials being placed on social media can adversely affect EPG, a customer/client, colleague or others.

Work related matters must not be placed on social media at any time either during or outside of working hours. This includes access via any mobile computer equipment, including mobile phone or other devices unless approved in advance by senior management. Where you have been authorised in relation to work related matters, you must not bring EPG, its clients, suppliers, or any other associated parties into disrepute through your usage. While representing EPG on social media, it is expected that you will exhibit a professional and courteous attitude with clients, your colleagues, suppliers and other members of the public.

DISCIPLINE

General

This policy sets standards of performance and behaviour expected by the Employer, together with the procedure to be followed in the event of disciplinary issues. The policy aims to help promote fairness and order in the treatment of individuals.

It is the Employer's aim that the rules and procedures should emphasise and encourage improvement in the conduct of individuals where they are failing to meet the required standards, and not be seen merely as a means of punishment. We reserve the right to amend these rules and procedures where appropriate.

Optimally, you will exercise adequate self-discipline in work related activities and thus achieve at least a satisfactory level of performance. Every effort will be made to ensure that any action taken under this procedure is fair. The following rules and procedures should ensure that:

Disciplinary Rules

HARASSMENT AND BULLYING

Introduction

EPG commits to providing of a fair, healthy and safe workplace in which everyone is treated with dignity and respect and in which no one feels bullied, threatened or intimidated. Bullying or harassment in any form is unacceptable behaviour and will not be permitted or condoned.

We recognise that bullying and harassment can exist in the workplace, as well as outside, and that this can seriously affect workers' working lives and can impact on the health, confidence, morale and performance of those affected by it, including anyone who witnesses or has knowledge of the unwanted or unacceptable behaviour.

Harassment and bullying can be directed to superiors, subordinates and colleagues.

Harassment

Harassment is any unwanted physical, verbal or non-verbal conduct based on grounds of age, disability, gender identity, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, race, religion or belief, sexual orientation which affects the dignity of anyone at work or creates an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment.

Sexual harassment is any unwelcome sexual advance, an unwelcome request for sexual favours or any unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature. Such conduct includes making a statement of a sexual nature to a person, or in the presence of a person, whether the statement is made orally or in writing. Harassment on the grounds of sex is any unwelcome conduct of a seriously demeaning nature and includes making a statement to a person, or in the presence of a person, whether the statement is made orally or in writing.

A single incident of unwanted or offensive behaviour can amount to harassment. Harassment can take many forms. Examples of harassment include:

- insensitive jokes and pranks including inappropriate comments based on sex, lewd or abusive comments about appearance
- asking intrusive personal questions based on a person's sex
- deliberate exclusion from conversations
- displaying abusive or offensive writing, printed material or an object
- an unwelcome sexual advance, request for sexual favours or touching
- unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature
- abusive, threatening or insulting words or behaviour.

Disciplinary action will be taken against employees committing any form of harassment. Such action may include disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Bullying

Bullying is repeated, offensive, abusive, intimidating, insulting or unreasonable behaviour directed towards an individual or a group, which makes the recipient(s) feel threatened, humiliated or vulnerable. Single incidents consistent with bullying will not be tolerated. Bullying can occur in the workplace at events connected to the workplace, such as social functions or business trips. Bullying can be a form of harassment.

Bullying can be physical, verbal and non-verbal conduct. Examples of bullying include:

- abusive, insulting or offensive language or comments
- unjustified criticism or complaints, physical or emotional threats

- participation in adverse speech especially gossip, contumelious speech or behaviour, detraction, calumny, rash judgement
- deliberate exclusion from workplace activities,
- the denial of access to information, supervision or resources such that it has a detrimental impact on the individual or group
- 'counselling' someone without permission or due reason

Sexual Harassment

General

Sexual harassment and sex discrimination are both unlawful and will not be tolerated. Anyone subjected to sexual harassment in the workplace is encouraged to speak up and follow the sexual harassment complaints procedure outlined in this policy.

Sexual harassment is a specific and serious form of harassment. It is unwelcome sexual behaviour, which could be expected to make a person feel offended, humiliated or intimidated. Sexual harassment can be physical, spoken or written. It can include:

- inappropriate physical contact, such as unwelcome touching
- inappropriate staring or leering
- making a suggestive comment or joke
- sharing sexually explicit pictures or posters, sending sexually explicit emails or messages
- placing sexually explicit objects
- making an unwanted invitation to go 'out on a date'
- a request for sex
- intrusive questioning about a person's private life or body
- unnecessary familiarity such as deliberately brushing up against a person
- an insult or a taunt of a sexual nature
- harassment on the grounds of sex
- commenting on clothing and appearance without due reason
- behaviour that may also be considered to be an offence under criminal law, such as indecent exposure, sexual assault, stalking or obscene communications.

Sexual harassment in connection with a workplace can be committed by anyone including employees, contractors and apprentices as well as third parties such as clients and customers. Sexual harassment does not have to take place in the workplace to be unlawful. Sexual harassment in the course of employment can occur during work hours, at work-related events, between people at the same workplace, or between colleagues outside of work.

Sexual harassment includes behaviour which could be reasonably be seen to result in a workplace being offensive, intimidating or humiliating to a person because of their gender, even if the behaviour is not directed at a single person. Behaviour that may be considered sexual harassment in one situation may not be in others: flirtation or expressions of affection between two consenting individuals which is mutual, consensual or reciprocated is not sexual harassment. (Such behaviour may still be inappropriate workplace conduct). A single incident may constitute sexual harassment, it doesn't have to be repeated. If substantiated, sexual harassment is considered serious misconduct and can amount to a valid reason for termination without notice.

Leaders, and all employees on a client site, have the responsibility to exhibit model standards of behaviour, taking proactive steps to eliminate sexual harassment in the workplace. Staff are to be made aware of their obligations under this policy and the law and responding quickly and appropriately to any form of sexual harassment.

Disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment, will be taken against workers committing sexual harassment.

Bullying and Harassment Complaint Procedures

Informal complaint

We recognise that complaints of bullying, harassment, and particularly of sexual harassment, can sometimes be of a sensitive or intimate nature and that it may not be appropriate for you to raise the issue through our normal grievance procedure. In these circumstances you are encouraged to raise such issues with a senior colleague of your choice (whether or not that person has a direct supervisory responsibility for you) as a confidential helper. The Manager of Capability and Culture can be contacted even in the first instance.

If you are the victim of bullying or harassment, including sexual harassment, you should make it clear to the alleged bully or harasser on an informal basis that their behaviour is unwelcome and ask the individual to stop. If you feel unable to do this verbally then you should seek help and advice; a confidential helper can assist you in this.

Formal complaint

Where the informal approach fails or if the bullying or harassment is more serious, you should bring the matter to the attention of the manager C&C in any way you choose. Your possible distress and the matter at hand will be treated very sensitively and confidentiality. Sexual harassment matters are to go straight to C&C as a matter of great urgency on a 24/7 basis.

Keep any notes you have made of the bullying or harassment so that the matter can be dealt with properly. This includes:

- the name of the alleged bully or harasser
- the nature of the alleged incident of bullying or harassment
- the dates and times when the alleged incident of bullying or harassment occurred
- the names of any witnesses
- any action already taken by you to stop the alleged bullying or harassment.

On receipt of a formal complaint, we will act to protect you. This may include separating you from the alleged bully or harasser to enable an uninterrupted investigation to occur or suspension of employees (with contractual pay) until the matter has been resolved.

The person dealing with the complaint will invite you to attend a meeting, at a reasonable time and location, to discuss the matter to contribute to a thorough investigation. You have the right to be accompanied at such a meeting by a confidential helper of your choice and you must take all reasonable steps to attend.

An investigation may follow. Those involved in the investigation are expected to act in confidence. Confidence breaches are a disciplinary matter. At all times you will be protected.

On conclusion of the investigation which will normally be within ten (10) working days of the meeting with you, where appropriate, the appointed investigator may issue a report of the findings and decision, in writing, to you and to the alleged bully or harasser.

Due to the serious nature of sexual harassment, if you decide to not proceed with a formal or informal complaint, EPG reserves the right to consider appropriate action in the circumstances in order to ensure the safety and wellbeing of others connected to the workplace.

In all bullying and harassment cases, EPG will consider the seriousness of the behaviour and circumstances. This may include a review of current procedures, providing training and reminders to employees of their general obligations not to bully or harass others. Your concerns will be followed up. The Employer will also monitor workplace behaviour.

Reasonable Action

Before any other action occurs, your welfare is our priority. The Employer has contracted an experienced pastoral service readily available who can assist in such matters. This service is absolutely confidential and will not disclose any matter to the Employer unless it is either a legal requirement or permitted by you.

Disciplinary action will be taken against any employee (including contractor) found bullying. Action in relation to may include disciplinary action including termination.

It is reasonable for leaders to allocate work and to give fair and reasonable feedback on a worker's performance. These actions are not considered to be workplace bullying or harassment if they are carried out lawfully and in a reasonable manner, taking the particular circumstances into account.

Examples of reasonable management action can include but are not limited to:

- setting reasonable performance goals, standards and deadlines
- rostering and allocating working hours where the requirements are reasonable
- transferring an employee for operational reasons
- deciding not to select a worker for promotion where a reasonable process is followed
- informing an employee worker of their unsatisfactory work performance
- meeting with an employee to discuss performance and/or conduct
- informing an employee of their unreasonable or inappropriate behaviour objectively and confidentially
- implementing organisational changes or restructuring
- taking disciplinary action including suspension or termination of employment.

General Notes

If you bring a complaint of bullying or harassment you will not be victimised for having brought the complaint. You will be protected at all times.

If the investigation report concludes that the allegation is well founded, appropriate action will be taken against the bully or harasser.

If it is found that the complaint is both untrue and has been brought with malicious intent, appropriate action will be taken against you.

Appropriate action in relation to this matter may include disciplinary action, training and procedural review.

INTOXICANTS

Illicit Drugs and Alcohol

The use of drugs or alcohol jeopardises a safe workplace. The Employer recognises alcohol and other drug dependencies as treatable conditions and encourages those persons who may be subject to such dependency to seek assistance urgently.

EPG has a zero tolerance approach towards the presence of illicit drugs within the workplace. This includes the discovery of an employee with possession of an illicit substance, and any testing which results in a non-negative reading of a substance within an employee's system above the detectable limit while at work.

Employees are not permitted to work while under the adverse influence of alcohol. For the purposes of this policy and due to the nature of your work, if at any time you are required to operate vehicles, heavy or otherwise, machinery or other high risk work, the blood alcohol concentration limit allowed will be zero (0.00%).

Alcohol may be consumed at some Employer events. Where this is the case, the Employer encourages responsible alcohol consumption and at no time will the Employer will allow you be drunk or behave in a manner which is inappropriate.

Non-compliance with this policy and any associated procedure by employees may result in disciplinary action up to and including termination.

Licit Medication

Attendance at a work place when adversely affected by licit medication is not allowed. Employees who use any prescribed/over-the-counter medication or drugs which may affect their ability to perform their work, but not adversely, must notify management as soon as possible. You may be required to produce a medical certificate indication fitness for work or specifying restrictions.

No Smoking

Smoking (including e-cigarettes and vaping) on the premises or in EPG vehicles is not permitted. You are only permitted to smoke in designated areas and during your breaks. You must also adhere to all relevant client site-specific policies and procedures regarding smoking.

DISCIPLINARY PROCEDURE

Excell Security has history of generosity in disciplinary matters in that it goes to great lengths to ensure the fairest treatment possible to all employees.

Disciplinary action taken against you may be based on the nature of certain conduct and behaviour. Process and outcomes of the disciplinary procedure will vary depending on factors including, but not limited to, any history of misconduct, the severity of the misconduct, your length of service and any mitigating factors. The outcomes include:

- informal warnings
- formal verbal and/or written warning
- final written warning or
- termination (including termination without notice in the event of serious misconduct).

Note that published policies and specific notices constitute a reasonable warning.

There may be occasions when disciplinary action warrants suspension.

Ordinarily a disciplinary outcome will be provided after:

- a meeting with you has taken place to discuss the issues allegedly involved (and at which you are entitled to have a support person)
- you have had the opportunity to respond to the allegations and
- we have considered your response and any mitigating factors

Note that all information relevant to a matter will remain as merely information until it is properly investigated. After that it may constitute evidence. During an investigation you will remain innocent until proven guilty. Consistent with justice, hearsay or other improper information will not be considered against you.

Where a disciplinary outcome has been provided, any future or further breach of the rules in relation to similar or entirely independent matters of misconduct may be subject to further disciplinary action and allow the continuation of disciplinary processes through to termination.

If you are in a supervisory or managerial position then demotion to a lower status position at the appropriate rate of pay may be considered as an alternative to termination, except in cases of serious misconduct which will usually result in termination without notice.

GRIEVANCES

It is important that if you feel dissatisfied with any matter relating to your employment you should have an effective means by which to resolve a grievance. Nothing in this procedure is intended to prevent you from informally raising with your manager any matter you may wish to mention. Informal discussion can frequently solve problems without the need for a written record. However, if you wish to raise a formal grievance you should normally do so in writing from the outset.

If you feel aggrieved at any matter relating to your work (except harassment for which there is a separate procedure) you should first raise the matter with your manager, explaining fully the nature and extent of your grievance. You will then be invited to a meeting at which your grievance will be investigated fully. You must take all reasonable steps to attend this meeting. You will be notified of the decision, in writing, normally within ten working days.
